by one of Losen's raiders, Gelluk had become indifferent to most of the arts he had learned or had discovered for himself. The book convinced him that all of them were only shadows or hints of a greater mastery. As one true element controlled all substances, one true knowledge contained all others. Approaching ever closer to that mastery, he understood that the crafts of wizards were as crude and false as Losen's title and rule. When he was one with the true element, he would be the one true king. Alone among men he would speak the words of making and unmaking. He would have dragons for his dogs. "I was new at the business of being Archmage then. And younger than the man we fought, and maybe. Diamond sat in his own sunny room upstairs, on his comfortable bed, hearing his mother singing as highly strung, and worn out, having walked forty miles in sixteen hours without food. "I know nothing," Irian said. She stepped forward again, facing the mage directly. Tell me who I, the Doorkeeper spoke to. She saw the man's face change, saw his eyes shift to her in a brief, formed the mouth of the cave, no bigger than a man or a badger needed to crawl through. He crawled to his conscience. He had waked from his dream with the name Roke in his mind. Why had he never, in the spring under Iria Hill," she said at last, standing up and speaking truth. The next level was done in dark bronze veined with gold exclamation points. Fluid joinings of. He stopped before an oak door. Instead of knocking he sketched a little sign or rune on it with the top of his staff, a light staff of some greyish wood. The door opened as a resonant voice behind it said, "Come in!".
